

Attorneys, Law Firms & Intake Teams

Can You Relate?

- ✓ How many potential clients call while you're in court, in mediation, or meeting with a client?
- ✓ How many intake calls go to voicemail... and never reach back out?
- ✓ How much time does your staff spend repeating the same questions or chasing documents?
- ✓ If your firm could automate intake, qualification, and follow-up, how many more clients could you convert each month?

USE CASE SCENARIO:

How a Law Firm Increased Qualified Case Revenue by 24% With VoxxyAgent's Emotionally Intelligent Intake Support

A mid-sized law firm handling a high volume of inbound calls for consultations was struggling to respond quickly to new inquiries, especially after hours and during court days. Potential clients often reached voicemail when calling about urgent legal matters, resulting in lost opportunities and delayed follow-ups. Imagine if VoxxyAgent supported the firm's intake process, answering calls 24/7, screening callers by case type, capturing critical details, and scheduling consultations based on attorney availability, without providing legal advice.

Within weeks, the firm could reasonably expect improved client intake efficiency and higher conversion rates from qualified consultations. By automating initial call handling and lead qualification, attorneys and staff spent less time on repetitive intake tasks and more time on billable work. If VoxxyAgent were implemented in this environment, a single AI call agent could effectively replace multiple intake staff roles, reduce overhead, and ensure no potential client inquiry went unanswered, while maintaining compliance and professionalism.
